

A DISREGARDED LAW.

The law which provides for action in the case of officials who neglect their duties by reason of intemperance, has for years been a dead letter in the case of the Judge of this Judicial District.

Of late his deplorable weakness for liquor has brought humiliation to his friends and contempt upon his office.

The fact can no longer be evaded that he is unfit for the grave responsibilities of the Bench.

On Monday, with a number of important cases on the calendar and a crowd of witnesses and litigants in attendance, he was too intoxicated to appear and the usual postponement had to be made and the usual excuse.

Some of these cases involve large sums of money and a failure to transact certain legal business at the proper time is liable to result in forfeiture of the rights of parties in interest, as well as jeopardizing the reputation of lawyers having the litigation in charge.

The spectacle of the Judge on the bench utterly disregarding the law and paying no attention to the rights of the taxpayers, is one calculated to bring the law into contempt with everybody.

This state of affairs has reached that point where nothing is gained by concealing the truth, and there is a feeling on every side that the people of the District, who pay $6000 a year for a Judge, have the right to demand one who will keep sober and attend to his business.

It is a regret to us that we are obliged to call public attention to this matter, as we have enjoyed the personal friendship of Judge Rising for nearly twenty years, and none of his friends can possibly feel a keener regret at his course than the writer of this article.

Bierce's Latest.

In last Sunday's Examiner Bierce published this delightful little graveyard melody. It is a gem of versification, even the bitter spot at the lower point of the jewel only seems to sharpen it.

I muse upon the distant town
In many a dreamy mood.
Above my head the sunbeams crown
Lone Mountain's giant rood.

The lupin blooms among the tombs,
The quail recalls her brood.
Ah, good is it to sit and trace
The shadow of the cross;

It moves so still from place to place,
O'er marble, bronze and moss;
With graves to mark upon its arc
Our times eternal loss.

And sweet it is to watch the bee
That revels in the rose,
And sense the fragrance floating free
On every breeze that blows
O'er many a hill, where meek and still,
Mine enemies repose.

So it seems the Monetary Conference is to be postponed until November. We suppose Congress will be called in extra session, probably in October. As things are going, about the time the demand shall be made that the Sherman law shall be repealed the crops will be in transit, and if the country escapes universal panic and loss it will be one of the miracles of these modern days. There is but one ray of light through it all, and that is that the Treasury officials are not springing to the assistance of Wall street in this panic; that they take it that the speculators in Wall street brought the present conditions upon themselves and that the time has passed when the department can hold up their gambling. —Salt Lake Tribune.

Remarkable Sheep Shearing.

Deputy Sheriff Anderson, who arrived yesterday from a trip to Paradise Hill, tells us of a remarkable sheep shearing contest which took place their Saturday. Ten shearers in the employ of Sutton brothers sheared that day an even 100 sheep apiece. An average day's work for an expert is about 75 fleeces, though some of them in rare instances clip as high as 125. Considering that the sheep sheared by ten men mentioned were large wethers, the record they made it probably one that has never been equaled. —Silver State.

The APPEAL feels safe in stating that spring is here; that is, reasonably safe.
